An open window. A notch in a tree. A closed box. Curiosity compels many of us to look inside. With my work I create spaces that entice you to look inside and contemplate the story within.

Summary

I am an emerging artist working in kiln-formed glass. I draw my inspiration from the natural world, and I love colors and designs that reflect the beauties of nature. My home studio lies in the foothills of Cache Valley in Northern Utah. While I am originally from the Southern US, I have called Utah my home since 1989. The beautiful high mountain desert in which I live, and its surrounding areas provide much of the inspiration for my work. I work with a variety of techniques and particularly enjoy working with frit and powdered glass to create color, texture, and design elements in my art.
